Boston, Massachusetts

AS PRESENTED BY THE

1940 Microcassette

With the snap of a camera shutter and the occasional click of a typewriter key, the staff of 1940 has captured Simmons in a bright blue mood — at study, at work and at play — packaged it in shiny paper and tied it up with gleaming lengths of ribbon.

GEOGRAPHICALLY SPEAKING

Boston as we see it . . .

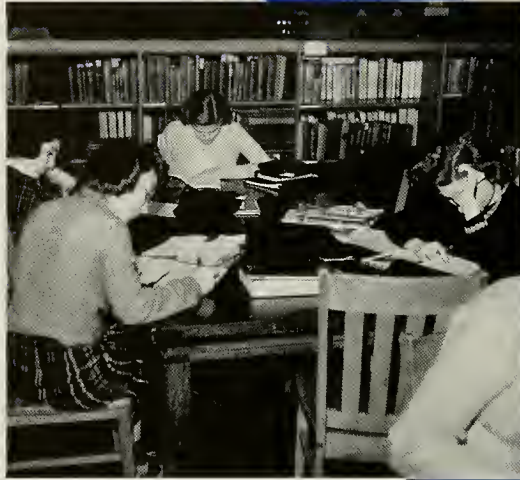

Is a conglomerate picture of metropolitanism against a setting of beautiful parks, cultural hobnobbing, and historical bric-a-brac. Surrounding the willow-graced Fens are Simmons girls' favorite haunts. Near Faneuil Hall is Durgin-Park; downstream from the College is the art museum; on the Charles, dinghy-dates are common; beyond the river sits John Harvard; above Simmons sight-seers rises the capitol dome; over the harbor stands the Blue Ship; after the final whistle at Harvard, crowds turn homeward; on the Common, passers-by feed the ever-hungry pigeons.

A "CANDID" WORD OR TWO ABOUT US

Candidly speaking, we are far from candid. Not that we're the quiet church mouse type, far from it. We like noise and verbosity but not that "post hoc ergo propter hoc" definiteness that makes one feel adolescent for lack of a philosophy of life. We like good things in life and good things to eat. Typically, we like cokes and smokes and find plenty of time for both. Our mental makeup is as heterogeneous as a Met libretto. We'll shout to high heaven if we think we're oppressed, but we'll make no panaceatic formulas for public consumption. We like our conversation spiced and our reading rational. Our parents think we're tops. Teen boys think we're dreadfully individualistic. Harvard boys think we're career hounds. "Fronti nulla arduis."

We Study

We study — everything “that’s good for us” — in quantities that give us a mental stomach-ache:

Brahms and bibliographies, physics and French verbs, shorthand and shortbread, first aid and Phys. Ed.

All the ingredients for a well-done education are tossed together into a “tested and approved” curricular mixing bowl, stirred, beaten (and even pounded) by an eager faculty staff of chefs under then ever-tiring administrative eye of head-dietitians Mesick and Beatley.

Four years of simmering — with the addition of a little fun and a lot of friendship, and from the frying pan which is Simmons emerges the well-prepared Simmons senior — and thence out into the fire of the world of 1940.

THE ADMINISTRATION

A living rock . . . around which, year after year, pour hurrying streams of students, the Administration remains a steadfast landmark in the channel of college life. Never quite submerged by the rushing, noisy current, the Administration shares our worries, scholastic, social, vocational, and financial, and guides us safely through all hazards to success — we hope.

First and foremost administrative officer, head of "Mr. Beatley's Seminary for Young Ladies," champion, when it's good for them, of what the students want, is a diplomat without portfolio, our President. A championship brand of baseball on the faculty team, engineering feats on model railroads, stirring speeches, praiseworthy innovations, quips to fit occasions, a memory for thousands of names, a popularity which his wife shares, and millions of worries, he takes in his lengthy stride.

PRESIDENT BANCROFT BEATLEY

ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICERS

BANCROFT BEATLEY
A.M., Ed.D., Litt.D.
President

JANE LOUISE MESICK
Ph.D., Litt.D.
Dean, and Assistant Professor of English

HARRY MAXWELL VARRELL
Ph.D.

Dean of the Graduate Division
Our spice of life and condiment of education, who teaches history with a twinkle and scans the headlines through his Periscope.

ALICE LUCILLE HOPKINS
A.B., S.B.

Director of the Library
The quiet, imperturbable, unbending force behind our library — a friendly, willing worker.

DORIS MARGARET SUTHERLAND
S.B.

Director of Guidance
A Simmons alumna with a grand smile and quick perception of undergraduate troubles which help her to smooth the ruffled feathers of troubled parents and students.

ANNE McHENRY HOPKINS
A.B., M.D.

Director of Health
A merry source of health, she avoids the grim necessity of making us well by cordially spending her time in seeing that we stay that way.

Dean Mesick

Mentor of the "penitence seat," master of the diplomatic word dropped in parental ears, mixer of raised eyebrow and merry twinkle, comrade of good fun, and advocate of good advice, our Dean can't fool us with her dignity into believing she is anything but a sympathetic and sincere advisor.

Miss Blood

Dr. Gay

Dr. Harley

Mr. Henkle

Miss Hardwick

HEADS OF SCHOOLS

ALICE FRANCES BLOOD
Ph.D.

Professor of Nutrition, and Director of the School of Home Economics

She's an artist at preparing interesting graphs, remembering faces, doing a dozen things at once, and making everyone like her.

ROBERT MALCOLM GAY
A.M., Litt.D.

Professor of English, Director of the School of English, and Chairman of the Division of Language, Literature and the Arts

Our prize possession forgets to be a disseminator of dull facts but remembers more interesting details about literature, music, and art than we dreamed one man could know.

KATHARINE DAVIS HARDWICK
A.B.

Professor of Social Economy, and Director of the School of Social Work

She charts the broad field of social work and brings the needs of the people into sharp relief with an ease that marks her as an expert.

HARRISON LEROY HARLEY
Ph.D.

Professor of Philosophy and Psychology, Director of the School of Preprofessional Studies, and Chairman of the Division of Philosophy, Psychology, and Education

An expert unraveller of mental snarls and spinner of colorful yarns, he unaffectedly draws us into a sincere liking for himself and his subjects.

HERMAN HENRY HENKLE
A.B.

Professor of Library Science, and Director of the School of Library Science

Cerulean orbs, ready risibility and an enthusiastic interest in libraries, juvenile publications and polysyllabic terminology combine into four syllables: Mr. Henkle.

KENNETH LAMARTINE MARK
Ph.D.

Professor of Chemistry, Director of the School of General Science, and Chairman of the Division of Science

The intellectual miner who refines crude ore in the face of tremendous obstacles and is also a true veteran in the old sport of bringing up babies — college ones.

HELEN RICH NORTON
A.B.

*Associate Professor of Store Service Education, and Associate Director of the Prince School of Store
Service Education*

She reacts sympathetically, decides quickly, guides wisely, and, while dealing with a wide range of responsibilities, gives the touch of excellence to every act.

BRAYTON FULLER WILSON
Ph.D.

Professor of Business Economics, Director of the School of Business and Secretarial Studies, and Director of the Prince School of Store Service Education

He shapes our plans without dictating, accomplishes without furor, evokes a laugh without show, and is always genial.

HELEN WOOD
R.N., A.M.

Professor of Nursing, and Director of the School of Nursing

The nursing school claims her but we all acclaim her for her gentle skill in healing wounded feelings and stimulating us with her presence.

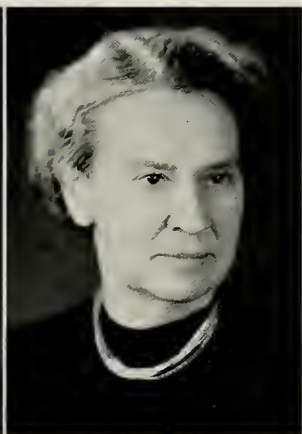

Dr. Mark

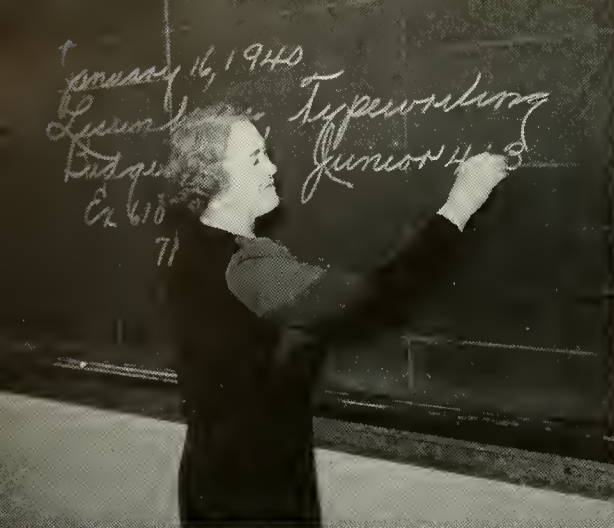

Miss Norton

Dr. Varrell

Dr. Wilson

Miss Wood

ABBOTT, MRS. MARGIA HAUGH, Ph.B.
Associate Professor of Clothing

She teaches us to analyze textile fibers, to distinguish wolf from sheep; thus we recognize the friendly person behind the professional dignity.

ACHESON, MRS. BLENDA THORMER, S.B.
Instructor in Chemistry

The helmsman who puts the class-wrecked students back on an even keel with a firm and gentle touch, and is a master mariner whose compass is clear thinking.

ADAMS, MRS. HELEN GOLLER, S.B., A.M.
Associate Professor of Secretarial Studies

She is a gracious person with sympathy and understanding, a beacon in the darkness of a shorthand class.

BECKLER, EDITH ARTHUR, S.B.
Assistant Professor of Public Health

A beautiful, blue-eyed fashion-plate whose exquisite hands are a pleasure to all who watch them; whose poise and dexterity in her work add to our respect and admiration of her.

BEESON, EUNICE WADHAMS, A.B., S.B.
Assistant in Library Science

Our help, hope, and stabilizer, the guardian of reserves, whose calm assurance does much to relieve our most anguished moments.

BERGER, MRS. KATHLEEN, S.B., Ed.M.
Assistant Professor of Secretarial Studies

Master of the art of teaching, she injects a bit of the Thespian into our classroom; a gracious personality, a sincere friend.

BIRD, JOSEPH W., Ph.D.
Lecturer on Personnel

A newcomer in our midst, he makes the business students job-conscious and puts personality into personnel with practicability plus.

BISSELL, EMILY UPTON, S.B.
Special Instructor in Sociology

She shows that a good memory means good lectures and makes us suspect black coffee prevents black moods.

BLACKMAN, BERNICE, Ph.B., M.S.S.
Special Instructor in Child Welfare

A friendly person with whom we discuss children, movies, and everything under the sun.

BOSWORTH, RAYMOND FRANCIS, S.B., A.M.
Instructor in English

Shades of Guy Fawkes and Beau Brummel brought up to date in this professor who thinks and doesn't hide it. . . P.S., we like him.

BOWERS, OPAL OLIVE, S.B.
Supervisor of Vocational Practice

Her vocation is vocations; skiing, mountain climbing, music, and painting are her avocations.

BOWLER, MARION EDNA, A.M.
Associate Professor of Romance Languages

Unselfish service is her gift to humanity, complete and exacting instruction her gift to us, and respect is our gift to her.

Mrs. Berger writes the assignment.
Miss Blood lectures on Home Ec.
Miss Bowler demonstrates "vire."

[22]

BRONNER, AUGUSTA FOX, Ph.D.

Special Lecturer on Mental Hygiene

She hurries from place to place so fast that all she leaves with us is an impression of sparkling eyes in a pleasant face—and a lot of information about mental hygiene.

BROTHERTON, NINA CAROLINE, A.M.

Professor of Library Science

A lady of the old school who is quietly eager to further the opportunities for fulfilling the book needs of children.

BURKE, MRS. BERTHA SHAPLEY, A.M.

Special Instructor in Nutrition

She is susceptible to the charms of good food and pleasant companions.

BUSH, MRS. JOSEPHINE LEWIS, A.M.

Special Instructor in Education

A young and able instructor whose efficiency and systematic teaching are surpassed only by her frank, pleasant personality.

BUSH, LYLE KENNETH, A.M.

Assistant Professor of Art

Magician of the magic lantern, mellifluous voice in the dark, he distributes gems of knowledge about gems of art to an enthralled audience.

CABOT, PHILIPPE SIDNEY, Ph.D.

Lecturer on Psychology

The little man who was there a second ago, teaches psychology with a dash... then dashes off to other urgent business.

CHAMBERS, IRENE McALLISTER, Ph.B., A.M., S.B.

Assistant Professor of Store Service Education

Executive Secretary of the Prince School of Store Service Education
Thorough in action; thoroughbred in reaction.

CHANNING, ALICE, Ph.D.

Associate Professor of Social Economy

An enthusiastic shopper and witty lecturer, who makes figures jump through hoops and over bar graphs.

CHAPMAN, MRS. JOSEPHINE M., S.B., Ed.M.

Instructor in Physical Education

That smartly-dressed young lady who leads the frosh from gym to archery range to tennis courts is not Simmons' most charming senior—she's Mrs. Chapman.

CHOPE, HAROLD DELOS, A.M., M.D., M.P.H.

Special Lecturer on Public Health Administration

He belies the dignity of his many degrees by always wearing a friendly grin.

COFFMAN, MRS. BERTHA REED, Ph.D.

Associate Professor of German

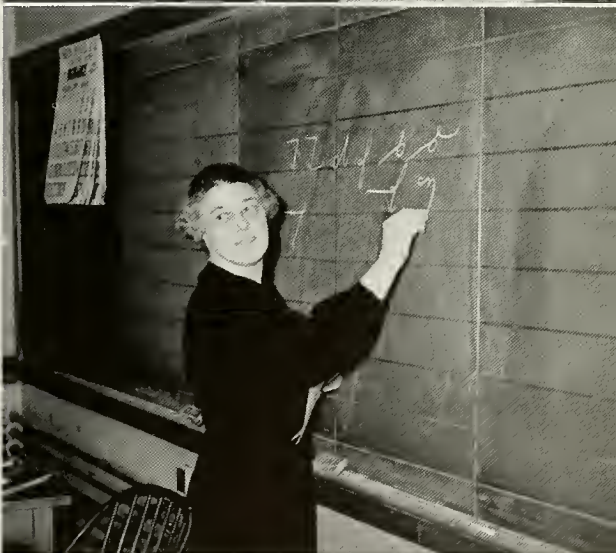

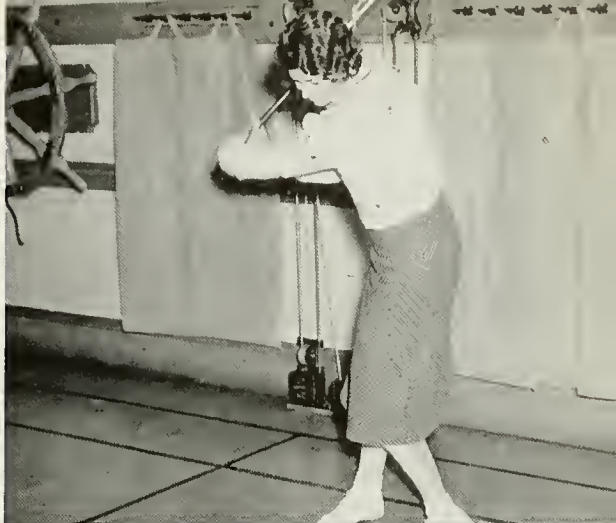

She gives us willingly tales of the Germany that was, and fluently of the Germany that is.

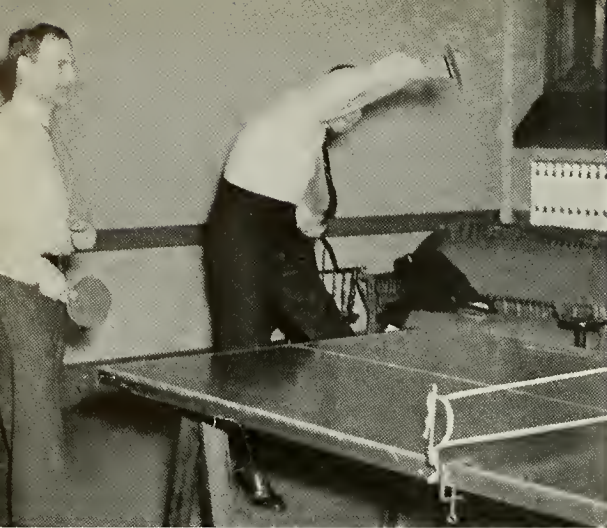

COULTER, MRS. ISABELLA KELLOCK, S.B., A.M.

Assistant Professor of Secretarial Studies

Our confidante and research expert whose twinkling blue eyes and delightful sense of humor help many a struggling secretary over the rough spots.

*Mrs. Chapman wields a golf club.
Miss Craig surveys our handiwork.
Mrs. Dickinson demonstrates Dewey.*

CROCKETT, ALICE LOUISE, A.M.

Assistant Professor of English

She lectures in stream-of-consciousness style, her ideas racing ahead of note-takers, leaving them breathless at the finish.

DAVIS, ELEANOR SOPHIA, A.B., S.B., Ed.M.

Assistant Professor of Clothing

She teaches by good example, making us all long to be as attractive and neatly groomed as she.

DAVIS, HORACE BANCROFT, Ph.D.

Assistant Professor of Economics and Sociology

He is shy and retiring but behind his bashful exterior lies a heart of gold and a mint of knowledge.

DAVIS, MRS. MARIAN RUBINS, A.M.

Instructor in Economics

She's an economist who is uneconomical with energy, for she spends hers freely toward furthering good causes.

DEUTSCH, FELIX, M.D.

Special Lecturer on Social Psychiatry

Blonde and blue-eyed, he looks Deutsch but is thoroughly American in his intense enthusiasm for liberty.

DIAL, FLORENCE SOPHRONIA

Associate Professor of Physical Education

The bulwark of the Physical Education Department, stalwart and smiling, who oversees all and misses nothing.

DICKINSON, MRS. TILLY SVENSON, S.B., Ed.M.

Instructor in Secretarial Studies

Calm, beautifully dressed nursemaid to secretarial students, she administers daily doses of Dewey and Gregg with a delightful bedside manner.

DIEZ, MARY LUISE, M.D.

Special Lecturer on Child Hygiene

This sprightly lady in blue loves children, even Simmons ones, and they can't help liking her.

DODGE, JANE GAY, A.M.

Assistant Professor of English

She is a frank and dignified professor who embroiders English with colorful anecdotes, gleaned from all over the world.

DODGE, MRS. QUINDARA OLIVER, S.M.

Associate Professor of Institutional Management

Director of Vocational Practice

She has an eye for color and both eyes for seeing things that need to be done.

DOHERTY, RICHARD POWER, A.M.

Lecturer on Economics

He teaches economics here, there, and everywhere, and still has time for psychology, with students as his guinea pigs.

DONOHUE, MARIE LOIS, A.B.

Special Lecturer on Mental Hygiene

Ready to help us to self-improvement, she makes people her hobby and makes us guinea pigs who present their antics to her objective and scientific eye.

Mr. Davis and Mr. X play ping-pong.

Miss Dodge drives home the point.

Miss Dow lends her desk to the butcher.

DOW, ULA MAY, S.B., A.M., S.D.
Professor of Foods and Home Management
 Her helpful suggestions in a smooth voice have smoothed the path of many a puzzled "Home Ec-er."

EDGE, SIGRID ANDERSON, A.B., S.B.
Instructor in Library Science
 She's a tall, smiling book of knowledge, full of statistics but very enjoyable reading.

ENGLER, VIOLA GRACE, S.B., M.B.A.
Assistant Professor of Accounting
 Our sunny world traveler, whose pleasant disposition, good sense of humor, and infinite patience help her to turn out future C.P. accountants.

FERGUSON, EULA GERTRUDE, A.B., S.B.
Assistant Professor of Secretarial Studies
 A grand friend who takes us into her confidence with a wink and is always ready to share a joke.

FISHER, LUCY ELLIS, S.M.
Instructor in Foods
 Efficiency, smiles, and a large measure of knowledge, well mixed, are the ingredients for a well-liked professor.

FLETCHER, ETHEL M., A.B.
Special Instructor in Family Social Work
 Her graciousness and efficiency are a pleasing combination which makes the problems of family social work a challenge to each one of us.

FORBES, JOHN MALCOLM, Ph.D.
Lecturer on Psychology
 An outdoor type who hunts and fishes for both game and correct quiz answers.

FRIEDBERG, MORRIS, A.M., DOCTEUR DE L'UNIVERSITE DE PARIS
Associate Professor of Economics
 Neatness and precision, brightened by imagination, characterize his appearance, his lectures, and his artistry at the piano.

*FRIEDBERG, MRS. RUTH BACHELDER, A.B., S.M.
Assistant Professor of Store Service Education
 A little woman who teaches retailing with a large amount of business sense; tactful, and possessed of a keen sense of humor.

GARDNER, MARION B., S.B., Ed.M.
Assistant Professor of Design
 She translates ourselves to us in terms of line, shape, and color, saying "After all, girls, your clothes tell me many things about you."

GOOCH, WILBUR I., Ph.D.
Special Instructor in Education
 This figure behind the speaking desk is an education in himself, a professor who is given to practical jokes.

GRANARA, INA MARY, S.B., A.M.
Assistant Professor of Chemistry
 She's tops, first in class, first in fun, first in the heart of every student she's ever known.

*On leave of absence.

*Miss Edge lectures to librarians.
 Miss Gardner supervises designers.
 Dr. Gay enlivens literature.*

GRAYSON, MRS. JESSIE GULLIFER

Special Instructor in Store Service Education

She teaches retail practices out of a wealth of experience and enlists the cooperation of store executives with whom she makes a quick contact.

HAGUE, ELEANOR, A.M.

Instructor in Biology

A teacher who is young, sure, ready to help, hates orthodox pedagogy, and treats us accordingly.

HARASZTI, ZOLTÁN, J.S.D., A.M.

Special Instructor in the History of the Book

A rare book enthusiast, smooth of voice, imposing and dignified in manner, scholarly in intellect, he is a commanding figure in the classroom.

HARDWICK, RACHEL LOUISE, S.B., Ch.B., M.D.

Special Lecturer on Medical Information

A gay smile and a black dress symbolize the qualities of her lectures—seriousness and fun.

HARRIGAN, MARY KATHRYN, S.B.

Assistant in Biology

The shy, modest maiden who, with a sweet and helpful air, gets us out of tough mental jams.

HARRIS, GORHAM WALLER, Ph.D.

Associate Professor of Chemistry

This well-balanced equation forms a general solution for the throes of chemistry. If you're stuck, see Dr. Harris and he'll relieve the problem and your mind, too.

HELMAN, MRS. EDITH FISHTINE, Ph.D.

Assistant Professor of Spanish

She brightens our lives with mental fireworks, glowing friendliness, and brilliant wisdom, which probe the crevices of our ignorance.

HEMENWAY, LELAND DAVID, A.M.

Associate Professor of Mathematics and Physics

This gosh-darn, dyed-in-the-wool, down-East Yankee twinkles his way in and out of that enigma, math, with the bluest eyes and friendliest manner that ever graced a mathematician.

HILLIARD, CURTIS MORRISON, A.B.

Professor of Biology and Public Health

"Still waters run deep," and steady, too, even if this stream occasionally forgets to go to class, but you can bet it's cleaning up on the subject of Public Health in the meantime.

HINE, JANE KATHRYN, S.B.

Assistant in Home Economics

New to the faculty but not new to Simmons, this pretty graduate of last year fools us into thinking she's an old hand at dietetics.

HINTON, WILLIAM AUGUSTUS, S.B., M.D.

Lecturer on Wassermann Technique

A quiet, considerate, definite man who is a professor in every true and honorable sense of the word.

*On leave of absence.

*Miss Granara finds the difficulty.
Dr. Harley decorates the blackboard.
Dr. Harris weighs the situation.*

HITCHCOCK, KATHARINE, R.N., S.B.

Assistant Professor of Public Health Nursing

A Florence Nightingale in ideas, she holds the light of knowledge in her hand.

HOLT, CAROLINE MAUDE, Ph.D.

Professor of Biology

The little person who jumped out of a TNT reservoir has lived up to her reputation, for we gobble with gusto the explosions that let loose a wealth of knowledge, humor and experience.

HORD, NELLIE MARIA, S.B., A.M.

Assistant Professor of Foods and Nutrition

Handed raw Sophs, she sets them to simmering mentally, then stuffs them with knowledge and so with unruffled calm produces a finished product.

HYATT, JAMES MEAD, Ph.D.

Professor of Physics

His retiring nature is balanced by his quiet friendliness but he is living proof that the effect of two equal and opposing forces is not immobility.

JACOBS, FLORA McKENZIE

Assistant Professor of Secretarial Studies

Changeable herself, she is amazed and amused by our never-changing mental lethargy.

JOHNSON, ARLINE, S.M.

Instructor in Home Economics

She bites pencils but never bites students, as their regard for her proves.

JONES, CHENEY CHURCH, A.B., LL.D.

Special Lecturer on Child Welfare

His experiences with little wanderers make the needs of child welfare real and important to us.

JONES, RAYMOND KENNETH, S.M.

Assistant Professor of Physics

"Beanstalk Jack" of the blue eyes and quiet voice, calms the scared Frosh, and out of a mythical hat pulls the explanation of "what makes the wheels go 'round," even in physics.

KAUFFMANN, MARY ELVIRA, S.B., A.M.

Assistant Professor of Library Science

She's a pleasant and brisk interpreter of the library catalogue in winter and the seed catalogue in summer.

KAUFMAN, MOSES RALPH, M.D., C.M.

Special Lecturer on Analytic Psychology

From Bessarabia to Canada to Boston and, we're glad to say, to Simmons came this "Who's Who in New England" professor.

KELLY, FLORENE CORA, S.M.

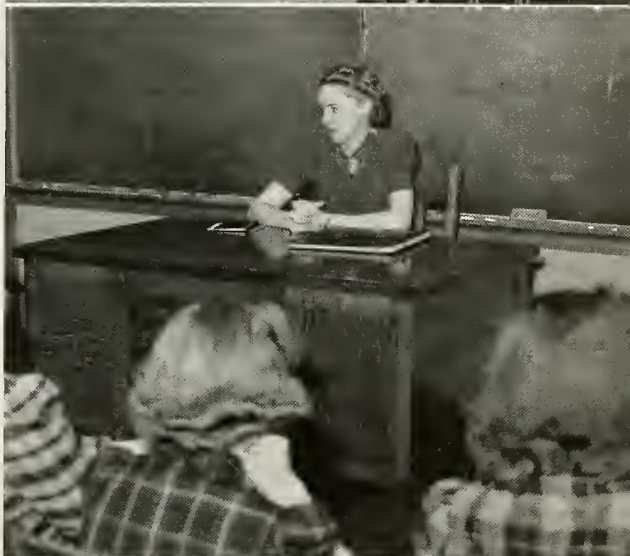

Instructor in Biology

Our quick-on-the-trigger biologist who bubbles over with enthusiasm, humor and fun, and gives animated lectures to inanimate students.

Mr. Hemenway looks for the right answer.

Miss Johnson speaks knowingly of foods.

Mr. Jones catches up on his reading.

KENDALL, ANNE MEANS, A.M.

Instructor in English

She's a young intellectual in sports apparel whose delight in philosophical studies constantly amazes and inspires us.

KLEIN, MANFRED, A.M.

Instructor in German

Impertinent pertinence of speech, desk-sitting antics, biting honesty, thunderbolt wit, and friendship offered from twinkling brown eyes make him our favorite paradox.

KNEELAND, NATALIE, Ph.D.

Assistant Professor of Store Service Education

Her hand finds room in the daintiest lady's glove, but she grasps the problems of education and psychology with the firm grip of a master.

LEONARD, RUTH SHAW, S.B.

Instructor in Library Science

Conciseness sifted to its essence, her penchant for perfect pronunciation, her lectures enlivened by humor, make her very logical instruction rare fun.

LEWIS, FREDERICK HOWELL, A.M.

Special Instructor in Psychology

Cats and summer camps appeal to him and his youth and attractiveness appeal to us.

LINFORD, ALTON A., A.M.

Assistant Professor of Social Economy

Competently and with a humorous twist, he leads us through the winding and circuitous ways by which the law helps people to social security.

LLOYD, RUTH, A.M.

Instructor in Social Economy

She comes to school with a business-like stride (such good exercise), then surprises us with her quiet love and understanding of children.

MACGREGORY, RUTH, S.B.

Instructor in Foods

Our quiet Practice House Mother prevents too many cooks from spoiling the broth, though the effort costs her many grey hairs.

McMAHON, KATE

Associate Professor of Social Economy

She's travelling advisor extraordinary to social work schools, social work scholars and social work subjects.

MARK, MRS. FLORENCE WETHERBEE, S.B.

Special Instructor in Chemistry

The right-hand pal of the chem department and the students forms a one-man mediation board to flawlessly iron out a thousand and one wrinkles.

MATLACK, JUDITH, A.M.

Assistant Professor of English

She's a super-salesman for Simmons, with a teacup in one hand and a pen in the other when she's not busy answering our questions and coaching our plays.

Mr. Klein reads "auf Deutsch."

Mr. Lewis enjoys the joke too.

Dr. Mark knows about graduates.

MONTAGUE, MRS. OUIDA CROUSE, S.B.
Special Instructor in Hospital Laboratory Methods
 Patience plus kindness plus thoroughness equal a very much loved professor.

MORIZE, MRS. RUTH CONNISTON, Mus.B.
Lecturer on the Appreciation of Music
 She gives us music with a European flavor well seasoned with a vitality and enthusiasm all her own.

MORRIS, MRS. EVANGELINE HALL, B.A., B.N., R.N.
Instructor in Public Health Nursing
 She is a dignified and gracious lady whose main interest is the science of maintaining a healthful society.

MOTTET, MME. EVA LOUISE MARGUERITE, BRÉVET SUPÉRIEUR, A.M.
Associate Professor of Romance Languages
 In her we have the spirit of the France that was, all the delightful things that the word "Paris" implies rolled into one.

MURDOCH, GWENDOLYN, A.B., S.B.
Instructor in Library Science
 She possesses the gift of pulling us over a rough spot by the deft twist of a Jonsonian phrase combined with a sparkling smile and enviable patience.

NEAL, RAYMOND ELWOOD, S.B.
Assistant Professor of Chemistry
 A phenomenon of Harvard who eats peanuts, plays ping-pong, and consistently bowls 'em over, pins and students alike.

NEEDHAM, JOSEPH GARTON, Ph.D.
Assistant Professor of Psychology
 This auburn-crested professor is like a big brother who disregards our foolish whims, is serious when we are, and loves to play tricks on us.

NELSON, NELS ALBIN, S.B., M.D.
Special Lecturer on Social Hygiene
 His appearances are as rare as "A's" at Simmons, and as welcome.

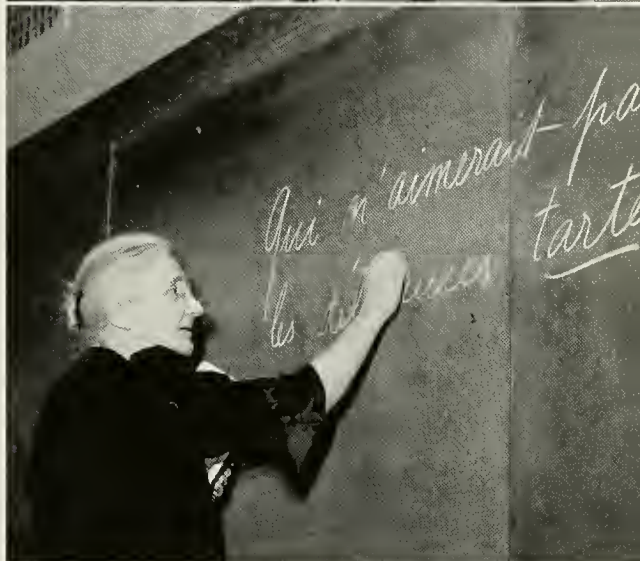

NICHOLS, MALCOLM STRONG, A.B.
Special Lecturer on Family Welfare
 A jovial pipe smoker, whose fascinating accounts of adventures in serving the public make his lectures really special.

NORCROSS, MARY ELIZABETH, R.N., S.B.
Special Instruction in Nursing Education
 She satisfies her vocational needs at the Children's Hospital and finds the answer to an avocation in a deep enthusiasm for sanitation and drain pipes.

NORTHIDGE, HAZEL RUTH, S.B.
Instructor in Secretarial Studies
 Sympathetic to the workings of typewriters and student minds, she mixes the two with a charming smile, adds shorthand, and turns out secretaries.

O'BRIEN, HELENA VERONICA, S.B., LL.B.
Special Instructor in Business Law
 A keen wit in a logical mind, a striking personality, whose countless stories make the dry rules of law come to life.

*Madame Morize explains the theme.
 Madame Mottet accents French.
 Mr. Needham applies psychology.*

O'CONNOR, MRS. ELEANOR MANNING, S.B.

Special Instructor in Housing

She helps us to build houses in the classroom from the wealth of real benefit which her castles in the air of travelling and architectural achievement have produced.

OLSON, ELSA RUTH, S.B.

Assistant in Library Science

Hers is the smile that makes us happy, the eager cooperation that speeds her work and ours.

PALMER, WALDO EMERSON, A.B.

Assistant Professor of History

A fresh-air fiend whose tremendous vitality and witty repartee make even Social Studies attractive.

PAVENSTEDT, ELEANOR, M.D.

Special Instructor in Social Psychiatry

A human dynamo, who covers the wide range of modern psychiatric effort with whirlwind rapidity.

PEARSON, CARL AUGUST, A.M.

Assistant Professor of Physics

A man with a quantitative mind who swears that all students live by Newton's first law. We may eventually persuade him that this isn't fundamentally true—or die in the attempt.

PLAYFAIR, WILFRID ERNEST, B.A.

Lecturer on Journalism

This tall, amiable friend of ours knows more about us than we do and always manages to put our best foot forward.

PRATT, MRS. LALIA CHARLTON, S.B.

Special Instructor in Chemistry

She is a practical example of acid on a metal—effervescence, and proof that “never a dull moment” rarely produces a dull student.

QUINLAN, MRS. AGNES CONWELL, A.B., S.B., Ed.M.

Instructor in Secretarial Studies

Brisk and alive, with quiet humor in smiling eyes, she is our favorite trouble shooter and “builder-upper.”

RANKIN, ROBERT CARTER, Ph.D.

Assistant Professor of History

He teaches history in the classroom and current events on the back steps, coatless always because he knows his welcome there will be warm, no matter what the weather.

RICHARDSON, PHILIP MORRISON, S.B.

Assistant Professor of Biology

This blond fox is always ten jumps ahead of the students who, like a pack of untrained puppy-hounds, scramble madly to keep up with him and love it.

ROGERS, VIRGINIA PAINE, A.B.

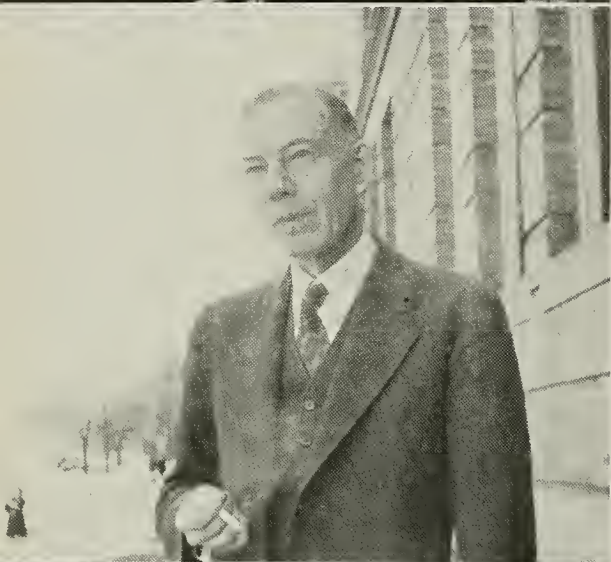

Special Instructor in English

A prolific note-writer, an avid Pall Mall smoker with a passion for candy, an imitator of Southern accents, she does nothing by halves.

ROOT, HOWARD FRANK, A.B., M.D.

Lecturer on Medical Information

Social workers must have a fund of basic medical information and because of Dr. Root, the Simmons ones do.

Miss Northridge helps the typist.

Mr. Playfair surveys the scene.

Mrs. Quinlan catches transcript errors.

[30]

RUBEY, JAMES TATE, A.M., A.B. IN L.S.

Assistant Professor of Library Science

Our walking collection of material services, who with his quick smile turns the search for that ever-elusive answer into a treasure hunt.

SACHS, HANNS, LL.D.

Lecturer on Analytic Psychology

Once a pupil and collaborator of Professor Paul Ehrlich, for his teachings we feel respect, awe, and much reverence.

SARGENT, MRS. FLORENCE CELIA, S.B., A.M.

Associate Professor of Chemistry

A dynamo with ideas doesn't have a chance when this pal of ours with the schooner-sized heart starts generating action on the second-floor left.

SARGENT, MRS. ISABEL LINSKOTT, A.B.

Assistant Professor of Biology

Ann Harding of the second floor relieves the eyes and then relieves the brain by bringing biology to life for us.

SLEEPER, IDA ALICE, A.M.

Associate Professor of English

Awake to all issues and sympathetic to the arts, religion, and us, this pleasant lady is no sleeper.

SOLINGER, JULIAN LOUIS, PH.D.

Instructor in Biology

The little man who wasn't there makes us realize how much we have needed him, and now we hope he'll promise to stay and help.

SOLOMON, HARRY CAESAR, S.B., M.D.

Lecturer on Clinical Psychiatry

Coordinated by his keen desire for knowledge, Tolstoy, music and mental disease have charms for him.

SOLOMON, MRS. MAIDA HERMAN, A.B., S.B.

Instructor in Social Economy

With an infectious zeal and a mammoth fountain pen, she drives us to an enjoyment of life and a desire to mend the world.

SONDERGARD, ELIN FRANCES, S.B., M.B.A.

Instructor in Accounting

Patience is her virtue, accuracy her aim.

SOUTHGATE, HARRIET ALDEN, PH.D.

Assistant Professor of Chemistry

A complex heterocyclic compound of infinite depth, resource, intellect and possibility upon which student research has scarcely touched.

STEARNS, HOWARD OLIVER, S.M.

Assistant Professor of Physics

The Walt Disney of the Physics Department who keeps a corps of cameramen busy, specializes in entertainment, and gives feature-length exams.

STEIGER, GEORGE NYE, PH.D.

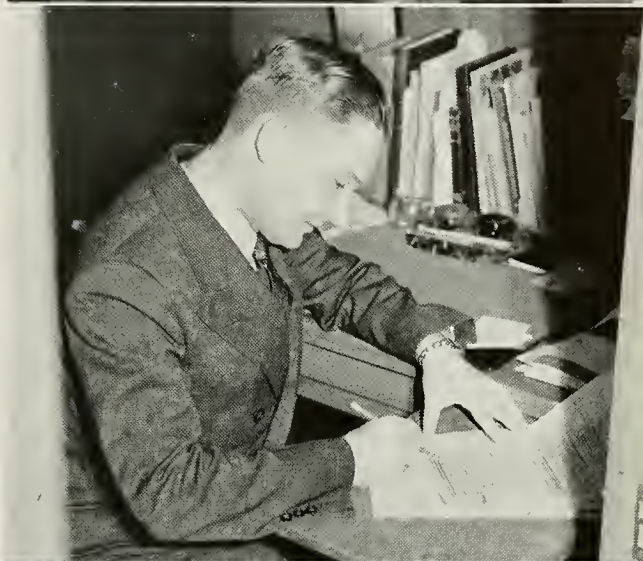

Professor of History

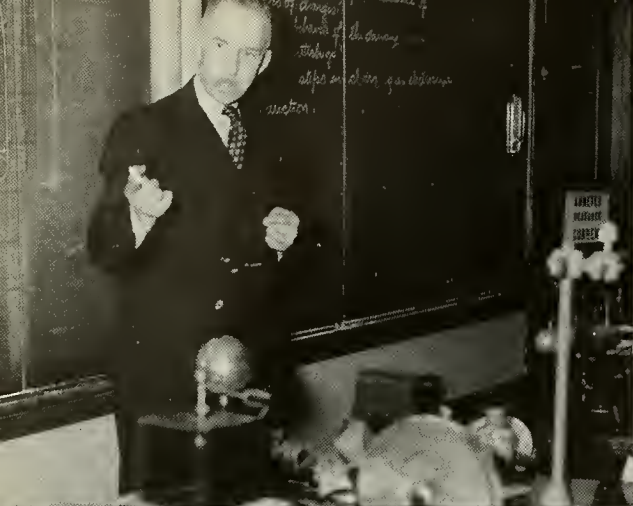

His necktie is seldom straight but his lectures are—except when given quirks by his wit.

Mr. Rankin smiles on the back steps.

Mr. Rubey corrects exam papers.

Miss Southgate adjusts apparatus.

STERN, FRANCES, A.M.

Special Instructor in Nutrition in Social Work

Food in relation to family life, Nestle bars in relation to Miss Stern, and hobbies in relation to us all make knowing her fun.

STIMSON, MARJORY, A.B., R.N., S.B.

Associate Professor of Public Health Nursing

Stimulating is the word for Miss Stimson, whose formula is informality, whose specialty is friendly advice.

STIMSON, RUFUS WHITTAKER, A.M., B.D., Ed.D.

Lecturer on Rural Problems

With him, the pen is mightier than the typewriter and work is mightier than the well-shined apple.

STITES, SARA HENRY, Ph.D.

Professor of Economics

Chairman of the Division of Social Studies

A wee one in a tailored suit, she distributes intellectual currency to the masses, lectures graphically, and imposes a strict tariff on illogical reasoning.

STUART, JESSIE MILDRED, S.B.

Assistant Professor of Store Service Education

She teaches fashion facts with a keen perception of good taste and is adored by her salesgirls for her understanding of their viewpoints and problems.

SWEENEY, CLARE LOUISE, A.B., S.B., Ed.M.

Assistant Professor of Office Management

Ireland gave her an energetic brain and tongue, we give her trials and tribulations, and she uses one to conquer the other.

SWEEZEY, MRS. MAXINE YAPLE, Ph.D.

Substitute Professor of Economics

She may be a substitute, she is full of ideas; we readily admire her, we wearily attempt to meet her pace.

SYIPHER, FELTUS WYLIE, Ph.D.

Assistant Professor of English

Prince of the faculty who out-Gallahad's Gallahad in his quest for knowledge which he then lavishes upon us with inspiration and energy.

THOMASIAN, MRS. FRANCES GRISWOLD, S.B.

Special Instructor in Institutional Management

Our model of efficiency and pattern of capability, who rules over the lunchroom and captivates everybody with her quick smile and slow, pleasant drawl.

TIFFANY, HENRY DYER, JR., A.B., M.B.A.

Assistant Professor of Business Economics

Our friendly, easy-going man of the world, who makes writing copy and drawing layouts an enjoyable afternoon at the club.

TODD, HELAINE AUDREY, A.B., M.S.W.

Assistant Professor of Social Economy

Skill and system, enlivened by a deep interest in each case make her classes absorbing.

*Mr. Stearns enlarges upon electricity.
Miss Sweeney discourses on cataloging.
Mr. Sypher tells of literary proceess.*

TRYON, WARREN STENSON, A.M.

Assistant Professor of History

He is a veritable Jack-in-the-Box, for no sooner do we think we've suppressed him than he pops up again with a new opinion to startle us... and to make us think.

VALZ, DINO GRIS, A.B.

Special Instructor in Book and Magazine Publishing

A human perpetual-motion machine and faculty advisor indefatigable, who dares hope he can teach us the fine points, picas and ems of publishing.

WADSWORTH, MRS. LUELLA DUDLEY, S.B.

Special Instructor in Chemistry

She shows us what the well-dressed chemist wears.

WATSON, SUSIE AUGUSTA, A.B., R.N., S.B.

Assistant Professor of Biology

Like a helpful aunt—she pushes, prods and pounds knowledge into unyielding heads, then laughs and sets the upset mind right again.

WHITAKER, ELIZABETH AUGUSTA, Ph.B., A.M.

Instructor in Biology

A shy flower quite at home with frogs and mice as well as the prettier side of the second floor, besides being a grand pal to all of us.

WHITE, MRS. EVA WHITING, S.B.

Professor of Social Economy

A true social-scientist, who surveys the community and us with the same calm objectivity.

WHITE, RUTH LORING, S.B.

Special Instructor in Nutrition

Our wee one with a wee voice and large store of laughter is capable of deep convictions.

WILKINSON, JENNIE BLAKENEY, S.B., Ed.M.

Assistant Professor of Secretarial Studies

She's that paradox, a gentle, soft-spoken dictator with a sense of humor.

WITTON, MRS. CATHERINE JONES, A.M.

Assistant Professor of Biology

Gardener of facts, curator of biology, nurseryman to myriads of infant minds, all this and more too is our liked and honored Mrs. Witton.

WYLIE, LAURENCE WILLIAM, A.M.

Instructor in Romance Languages

Champion desk-sprawler at Simmons and ardent interpreter of French and Spanish, he lends a new zest to language study with his red hair and crooked smile.

WYMAN, MARIAN M., A.B., M.S.S.

Special Instructor in Case Work

A sympathetic, understanding person who likes history and the drama almost as much as she likes helping people.

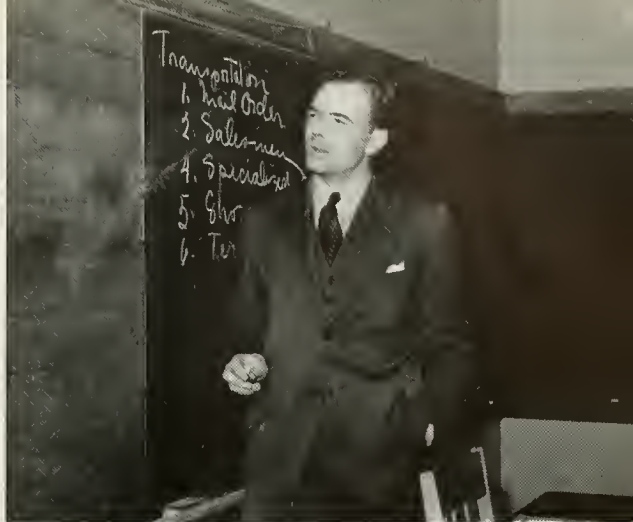

*YOUNG, GENEVIEVE, S.B., A.M.

Instructor in Biology

"Sugar and spice and all things nice" comprise one individual—this one—who is as refreshing as a whiff of a new carnation.

*On leave of absence, first half year.

Mr. Valz illustrates graphic arts.
Mr. Wylie relaxes between classes.

THE SENIORS

"Veni, vidi, vici," or did we?

Anyway, we had a lot of fun.

Tradition couldn't be escaped and we sweltered through the first week of September in our black "bat costumes," trying not to let shiny noses outshine our dignity. Headed by General Phyl Doherty, we stormed the Colonnade and strained our vocal cords in an attempt to out-sing the lower-classmen, as was our duty.

Weeks later, minus the encumberment of cap and gown, we were enjoying ourselves. We went to dances, we gave parties, we started clubs, concocted new traditions and carried on old ones. Our invasion of Evans Hall, our forays into the world of business, our handling of the reins of Stu. G., served to remind us that we have reached the top. — The end is near, "miserabile dictu."

We arrived in the good old days when Scholastic Aptitude was non-existent and radios were demons. We were timid guinea pigs then for the experiment of a new guidance program. Needless to say, we would not be guided and finished a socially perfect year with an unheard of number of casualties. From bibs we graduated to wedding gown, reverted to baby clothes for Frolic and ended the year as pseudo-sophisticates at Freshman Formal.

A slump was predicted for Sophomore year. For once we were predictable. By Junior year we had regained our "joie de vivre." We reveled in one-thirties and poised ourselves for the leap into leadership. Our Dine 'n Roll became a tradition and Junior Prom our fondest memory. June brought the Commencement of '39 with Rita Fay supervising Daisy Chain and the rest of us acting as waitresses and ushers.

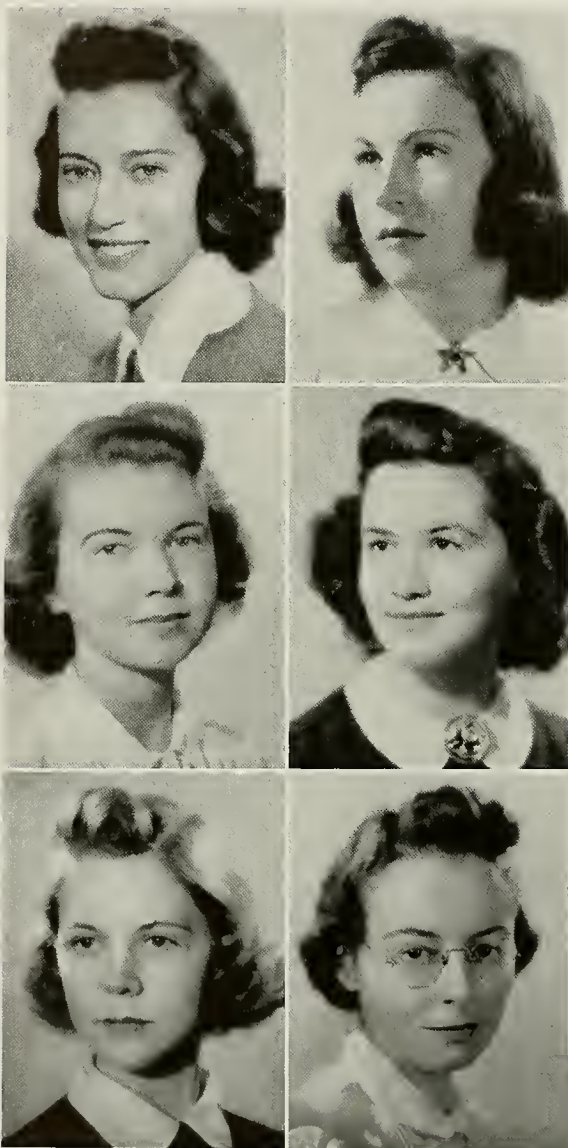

The Class Day capping of Phyl and our accession to the steps of the Colonnade marked the real beginning of our Senior year. From cap and gown we changed to rags for Jackie's Hobo Party. We plunged into a "gay nineties" atmosphere when we entertained the Freshmen with Peg Higgins as hostess. Apples were polished more brightly than ever before at Al Dickey's feast for Lions and Lambs. Connie Hillman made Senior Prom as great a success as her memorable Junior Prom. And so we come to Class Day when we must sing our last under Ruth Chatterton's direction and yield the steps to next year's Seniors.

THE JUNIORS “Where, oh where are the Jolly Juniors?” — everywhere and into everything. Peter’s pert followers are getting ready to be next year’s leaders.

Extending a welcoming hand to flustered Freshmen was our first and pleasantest assignment. After courting the Freshman Class with dates for lunch at our favorite haunts, we married them by proxy in the person of Jeanne Murray in Refectory Chapel to the strains of “Lohengrin” and popping flash bulbs.

Came March and Dine ’n Roll and we explored the floor of the Tech rink and found it hard. Came April and we were beset by worries. Term papers could wait, but where was a man for Prom? We found the man but the hours fled, leaving us only with happy memories and the prospect of Class Day, where we were to lay down the Daisy Chain to don the cap and gown.

THE SOPHOMORES

The perils of their first year all safely passed, the Sophomores are on their way. We dare to be different and we dare to be difficult; we haven't the slightest fear of the much touted "Sophomore Slump," socially anyway.

One mascot wasn't enough for us so now we follow the lively leadership of Honey's pet charges, Ann and Andy. One style of school ring wasn't enough for us to choose from so we gave old tradition a new twist at Sophomore Luncheon by blossoming forth with a ring of new design to suit our fancy. A shuffle at Shuffle couldn't describe us: we fairly pranced. In May we had the temerity to wake the Seniors at sunrise but we made amends by stuffing them with strawberries. Now, in point of time, we're halfway through, but we've only just begun.

THE FRESHMEN

Frolicsome Freshmen was no name for us when we first arrived at Simmons — we didn't have time to be! We were hand-picked before we came, we were told, but it took a week of exams and lectures before we were pigeonholed.

The Juniors took us by the hand and treated us like little sisters but it was weeks before we stopped ending up in the Assembly when we were headed for the Lounge. We explored Boston and discovered Coolidge Corner, learned to sing Simmons songs in somewhat feeble voices, doffed our growing maturity when we donned bibs, saw Virginia Chapin married to "Mr." Murray, Jr., and went home to sleep on wedding cake, exhibited our social graces at Formal, — and ended up in rompers at Frolic! No more rompers now, though; we're Sophomores — almost.

We Work.

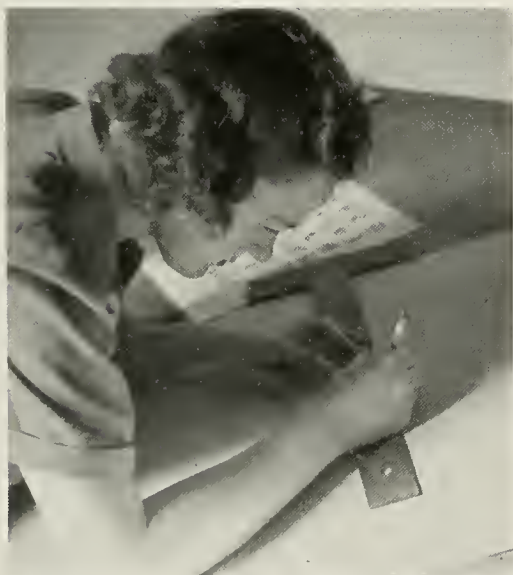

We work — wondrously well when we've a mind to and we have to do something to work off that mental stomach-ache:

Plays and posters, collections and concerts, magazines and marriage clinics, fencing and financing.

Like baseball teams of the Simmons League, each club has its stars, its managers, its scouts and the never-to-be-forgotten rookies. Each fall the season's schedule is mapped out; each winter we go to bat for our favorite clubs, and the year brings a series of base hits in fun, represented by teas, receptions, and outings.

In a league without championships, our extracurricular teams produce the finest and fittest of players, ready to take their place among the major leagues.

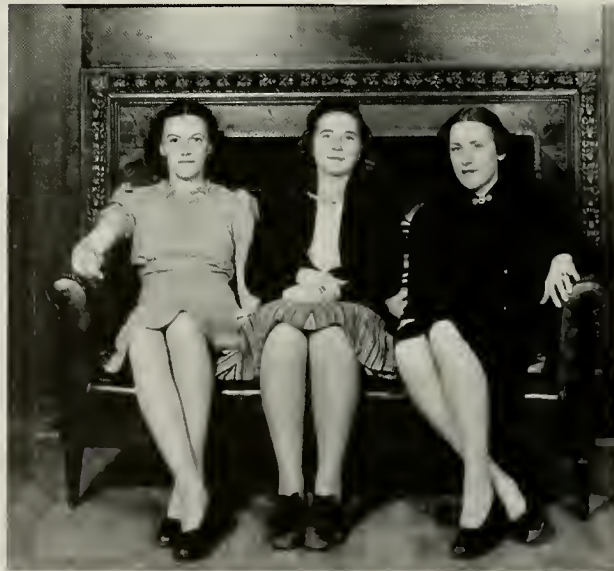

S T U D E N T GOVERNMENT

Lord High Executors of the will of the Administration and the desires of the student body, Stu. G. organizations, omnipotent and omnipresent, rule the social and curricular roost. Weighty proclamations emerging weekly from secret conclaves and numerous notes to naughty children festoon the bulletin boards to keep us posted on the doughty doings of these powers that be.

Wearers of the gold and blue badge troop through the corridors, keeping appointments, planning parleys, posting programs, "dating" Simmons via "the little red book," stirring up sociability, talking teas, feeding the faculty, making overtures to orators, and conniving for concerts.

From President Edwards and her supreme council, or Chairman Hartman and her social climbers, to Rosalie Sinek and her speaker-snarers, we nominate Stu. G. students as Simmons' busiest business women.

Dorm Council passes on house privileges

Student Government

Thirteen is this year's lucky number. Thirteen black-clad Seniors and intent underclassmen have gathered weekly in sometimes solemn conclave to give us radios at last and regulated liberty at least; thirteen Student Government members have accomplished electric fans on stepladders for smoking-room ventilation and serious discussion of questions through the question box and suggestions by word of mouth, all aimed at making us happy. Lord Spring and Lady Edwards with their retinue have entertained us royally at Old English Dinner, ruled from hypothetical high-chairs over Freshman Bib Party, and finally in May have handed on the blue and gold badges but not the memories of Student Government membership.

Dorm Board dignitaries

As Stu. G. is to Simmons in whole, so Dormitory Council is to the dormitories. House chairmen all, Council members have known whereof they spoke and have not hesitated to speak. Screened in a corner of Evans Hall basement, they have enlarged and created rules with such success that they have denied us all justification in breaking them and have lightened the duties of the "solemn seven" of their number who form the justice-dealing Dormitory Board. Many a quaking first-offender has made good resolutions under the questioning of the Board and many a rule-breaker has regretted before the justice of their decisions.

Suggestions from Dorm Council, plus suggestions from here, there, and everywhere, clarified by discussion, are the essential ingredients of Dormitory Advisory Board. Chairman Mesick and her able aides from Stu. G. Council and the faculty ponder such problems as 9:30's for Freshmen and produce sage advice toward making our microcosm happy.

Honor Board is not a police force and is seldom a law court, but it is a living reminder to us that we are big girls now and must behave like ladies. It is the power behind the unproctored exam, the right honorable eleven who put us on our honor.

Happiness in our social life is accomplished by the Social Activities Committee with fun for Freshmen at a Tech dance, campus teas and coffees for the congenial, chances for intellectual acrobatics at Town Meetings, tea dances, formal dinners, and faculty teas, and the popular Marriage Course.

Assembly Committee joins the ranks of the pleasure purveyors by brightening our Fridays and our intellect with weekly assemblies. Jésus Sanroma returned this year to gladden Simmons ears, Earl Spicer charmed us with ballads, and Hedda Ballou with music on the harpsichord. Dr. Myerson, psychiatrist, and Professor Hooton, anthropologist, told us what we are and what we were.

Microcosm

Those who know suspect that the name of this amateur publication might well be changed from "Microcosm" to "Maelstrom," for it is both, as the habitués of Editors' Room can testify. As Simmons is a small world within a world, so also is this yearbook which by statistical research shows 150 pages at an average man-hour approach of $3\frac{1}{2}$ hours per page, but how chaotic each of these hours has been only a few know well, though many suspect.

Crazy as is the small world reflected in this book, so much more so is the staff that from rank amateurs has been graduated by dint of much pushing and not a little pulling into a first-class, on-the-nose publishing organization. Fondest among the wishes of that staff are the hopes of doing it over, that is the year, not the book, for each dotted "i", each period-studded paragraph and each finished cut represents a unit of toil, a degree of anticipation and a mark of achievement.

From the tattered remnants of a beautiful dummy, repeatedly slashed to fit finances, has been extracted the finished product. Between the two are takes and retakes, missed deadlines, frantic sleuthing, mislaid copy, midnight conferences, copious correspondence, worlds of worries, not a few ruined plates and more ruined dispositions. Picture to halftone, character count to filled space, white paper to ad-filled page, financial zero-point to long subscription list, each step is reviewed for next year's staff at Mic banquet, scene of our celebration of a job well done.

Literature and ledger

Makers of Mic

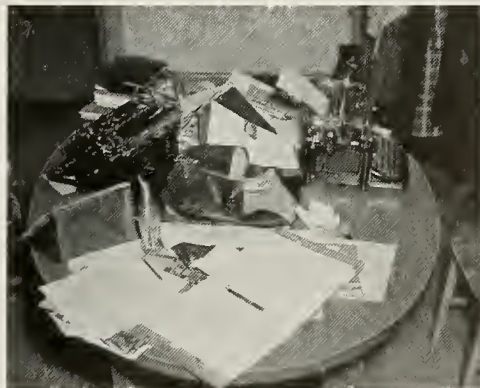

Celebration after creation

Balm to the minds of harried editors and perpetrators of the deeds that made the book were the members of the staff, often confused by garbled instructions and reversed decisions but striving madly for all that. They responded nobly to cleventh-hour instructions and time after time accomplished the all but impossible with unfailing good nature to win the undying gratitude of the editors. They, and others whose name is legion, have managed by dint of great effort to compress Simmons into the few cubic inches of paper called the 1940 Mic.

from typewritten schedules, were the hardworking gals of the better business for Mic bureau, who garnered ads from unsuspecting merchants and sold subscriptions to bewildered frosh. Business is as business does, and under the bespectacled smile of Dot Fisher, business bloomed and brought forth a balanced budget . . . we hope. Ad salesman Norma McDan gathered in the shekels while subscription-campaigning Connie Hillman dotted the corridors with boat-missing slogans artistically executed by Art Editor Bobbie Montgomery, to bring results.

Neophytes of the Fourth Estate

News

New to News this year are a column of letters from all over Europe, a theatre bulletin-board to keep us up to the minute with reviews and pictures, and a new bookcase in Editors' Room. By no means new to News are Tuesday deadlines, Wednesday nights at Louie's, Thursdays of distribution, and Friday re-hashings.

The quietness of the journalistic front on Thursdays is sooner or later shattered by the worries of Editor Marj Knowlton, the forays into Editors' Room of Ruthie Gifford for more copies to circulate, Merry Stebbins' excited search to see if that lecturer's name got spelled correctly, Betty Kitchen's clattering typing of notes to the Feature Staff about deadlines, Mary Turchin's berating of ambitious journalism students who will use News typewriters to write up assignments, Dotty Williams' worried searching of Social News to see who's been left out, and Mary Anastos' smiling queries about the activities of Pris Bowman's advertising staff.

Friday, and the whole thing starts again. Assignment sheets cover the bulletin boards, desks are snowed under with piles of yellow cypaper, editors write notes to themselves and others and promptly lose them, spaces can't be filled and reporters charge out into corridors to gather information, pencils are bitten, brows are furrowed. Wednesday, ready or not, News goes to press, where headlines are written on the spot and copy stretches and contracts like rubber.

The last fling of the '40 staff brings News Dance with its miniature newspapers for programs and hostess Sally Simmons resplendent in white net and brocade.

In April the struggles of the '40 staff are laid down, only to be picked up again by the staff of '41. A new News staff moves in to fill Editors' Room waste baskets with yellow paper.

News noses

Putting the paper to bed

P. S.

P.S., an old magazine in bright new dress, composed of perpetual excitement, aims to be colorful and interesting. Layout experiments, calls for pictures and more pictures, ideas, articles, stories, sketches, ink-brightened pages folded in covers startling even to the editors, conscientiously compiled and heralded by posters, make the magazines that appear briefly on hall table.

Editor Priscilla Pickett searches for ideas and for copy and finds worries; Fran Faxon searches for money and finds more worries; everyone searches the style manual and finds confusion. Marjorie Closson guards the galleys, Sylvia Cook tries to decipher the instructions of frantic editors for art work, Pris Johnson tries to get rid of the magazines and is appalled when they disappear too quickly; Sis Wilson, ambushed behind a camera, captures prize pictures of people and places.

Weeks of trying to persuade the staff that type isn't made of latex and the advertisers that they're making a good investment, weeks of planning layouts, checking proofs, and chasing cover pictures, and P.S. is off to the printer. Relief is rampant until someone starts discovering last-minute errors that have gone to the printer and can't be fixed.

At last the mysterious publication date arrives and everything looks brighter than expected, especially those covers. The weeks of effort seem worth while, until the next issue gets under way and new tribulations loom larger than old ones. Hilda Lanc renews her search for copy, Pickett ponders, Mr. Bosworth is at hand with suggestions, editors cry for more cuts, more copy, more everything, the deadline wavers, the staff slaves and sooner or later it's all over . . . until the next time.

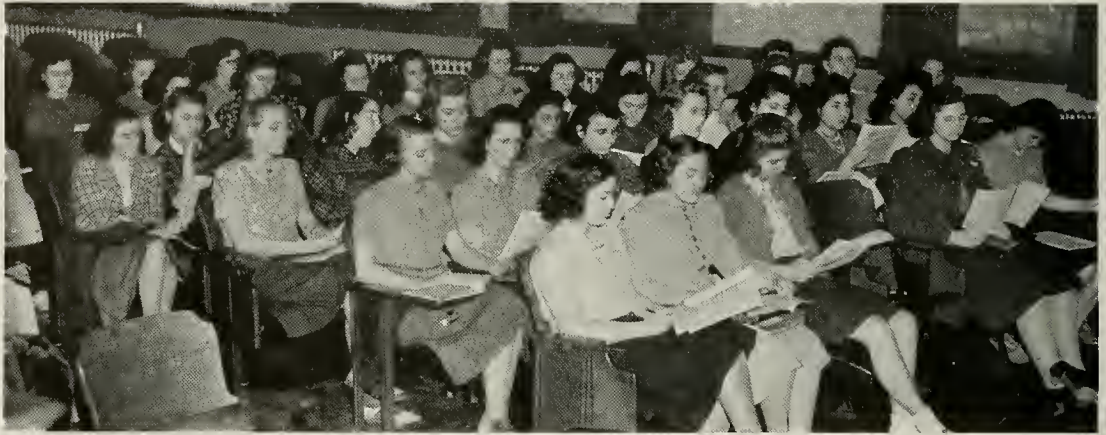

Musical Association

"Music hath charms," and music has charmed a great many Simmons girls into joining Musical Association. This year the Association or the music, or both, seem to have had special charm, judging from the membership, the largest in four years. One hundred forty girls have felt moved to sing and play under expert guidance.

Guided by warbler Fran Tewksbury, president Jean McCoy, and director Mr. Ring, Glee Club sang so lustily that it made itself heard all over Boston. Volume

Toward a finer format

Coming Commencement Chorus

was valuable but beauty was more so and soon Glee Club, like many other beautiful young things, began to be invited out. The first invitation to be accepted was that of the Women's College Club in October. They were so taken with the charms of Simmons' best voices that they proffered a second invitation in February. In November the club paused for sociability at a party with Northeastern in Evans Hall playroom. Social life didn't dull the girls' propensity for practice, however, and the Christmas season found them in fine voice for the annual concert of religious music at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Brookline.

Early March found them travelling to Worcester for a joint concert with the Clark University Glee Club. Clark entertained them with a tea dance before they returned to Simmons to start rehearsals for "Iolanthe." Fate intervened, however, leaving Glee Club sad at missing the year's high light.

Plans for "Stabat Mater" with the Harvard Orchestra and the Glee Club tea in May, plans for its young but thriving Madrigal Society, and performances on two radio programs kept the Glee Club busy without the operetta; and Orchestra, playing at Faculty-Transfer Reception and the Christmas concert, added its voice to the music of Musical Association.

Preview of the score

Dramatic Club

Dramatic Club has taken a new lease on life. It has always been important among Simmons organizations but this year it is the talk of the school because of the astonishing length of the strides forward it has taken.

The chosen few of the conscientious thespians who proudly wear the gold key for the first time are members of the club's own honor society, not Academy, but Mummers! Alive and lustily gesticulating after a slow birth which began in '38, this healthy youngster is the apple of Dramatic Club's eye.

Ideas, action, acting, and more ideas keep our budding actresses scurrying. Acting can no longer satisfy them all, so they are buzzing with plans for a Workshop, and they mean to have a good one. Speakers at teas have been glad to tell them how, and soon their dream will become a reality.

Success had bred success. This year the

Make-up for muses

True Thespians

club firmly pooh-poohed all opposition and ambitiously presented "Maids in Uniform," with such success that even they were surprised. Student Government saw which way the wind was blowing and raised the Activities Fee to give them fifty cents from each of us so that we can feast upon their offerings without delving each time into a flattened purse.

Even now these energy-spenders are not satisfied. The name "Dramatic Club," they feel, is too prosaic and undramatic for such a lively organization. Now, headed by a special committee, they have taken up sleuthing and deep thinking in an attempt to wrest from some source a name which will signify enthusiasm and hard work.

Poster Committee

New styles in the shops, the first robin of spring, sparkling snow-drifts in the streets, a glimpse of striking lettering in a magazine, are captured in paint and artfully scattered in the front hall gaily to herald approaching occasions. Behind those striking "what's, where's and when's" are the girls of the Poster Committee, artists all.

Posters with a profit mean a committee with a conscience, so when they're not putting posters together, they're pulling them apart to see what makes them click and what might make them click even better. They make posters synonymous with pin money by making their services indispensable.

Prizes for posters and accolades for artists from artists are distributed in May when posters are paraded and from among the good, three "bests" are chosen. These poster protagonists show their versatility here and the rest of Simmons gasps with amazement. Every club publicity director's first thought when faced by a puzzling promotion problem is "Get Poster Committee to make us a poster for the front hall."

Art Guild

Still-life study

Those pictures you see vanishing so quickly from the walls of the Lounge every year are products of the Art Guild lending library; a group of famous paintings aimed at brightening many a dormitory room.

Surpassing even this varied collection of art work has been the assemblage of speakers throughout the year.

Best of all are the craft classes meeting each week under the guidance of an instructor from the Massachusetts School of Art, when dexterous artisans plunge into the fascination of creation of Christmas cards, book plates, rings, bowls, bracelets. It's a sure way to forget your troubles.

Academy

Blue and gold ribbons on gowns, gold pins and pendants proudly displayed, are the clues to Simmons' intelligentsia. In this honored society, election is permanent — luckily for some.

A formal reception ushers new members into Academy. An open tea this year brought a dramatic presentation by Miss Virginia Rogers of the faculty.

From a program of selections from Beethoven, Chopin and Schubert, Academy members switched, perhaps unacademically, to prove that they're no grinds, to the musical comedy "Higher and Higher" for their annual theater party.

Intellectual elite

Ellen Richards

Scintillating intellects of Science School students take holidays from test tubes and labyrinthine formulas at meetings of Ellen Richards Club, where revelry is reduced to a science.

Once a year, strange to say, Ellen Richards has a birthday, and celebrates it in fine style. This year Marg Oliver sliced the birthday cake with fine precision. Hilarious high spot was the M.I.T.

Scientists celebrate

"Ice Pickers" reunion where Simmons scientists performed the experiment of eating Kelly-green ice cream and lived to tell the tale. Then there was a picnic to punctuate a procession of meetings at which interesting speakers furnished members and guests with food for thought. Miss Elizabeth Jones lectured on "Cosmic Research," Miss Evelyn Hearsey on "Emily Post in the Laboratory," and Miss Frances Waterhouse on "Medical Work at the Grenfell Mission." For relaxation from science, the girls of the Ellen Richards Club turn to science.

020 Club

020, gathering place on the shelves for books on Library Science, and meeting spot for future librarians, has taken a jump forward this year by admitting Library School Sophomores into its midst.

Varied and snappy programs throughout the year started off with Mr. Bosworth's talk on war plays which emphasized the increasing production of plays as reading material. Later in the year came an "Information Please" program, faculty versus students. Is it significant that dictionary prizes were pocketed by the student team? In February came Miss Bondreau of the Neponset Library to give a little of the inside of radio publicity for books.

Library club leader

Every Wednesday afternoon through the year, 020 Club has sponsored informal teas dedicated to the aid and further enlightenment of famished students and faculty.

Home Economics

More than a social club for the benefit of Home Ec students, Home Ec Club offers services which help the whole school. Weekly food sales are held and teas are planned and prepared for other Simmons organizations under the leadership of Ethel Walsh, Foods Chairman.

The Clothing majors operate a clothing service which is available to students, faculty, or even to outsiders. In general, this service includes the alteration and fitting, drafting, and draping, as well as the making of new garments. A shopping service is another function of this group, a service which includes advice as well as actual purchasing of articles. Rates are based on the time spent and the comparative difficulty of the different jobs. The rates are standardized wherever possible to remove unequal factors of speed and workmanship.

The money made from the services is put to excellent use. In May, the Home Ec Freshmen and Seniors are guests at the annual banquet; each year a scholarship is given to a worthy Home Ec student, and contributions are made to the National Fellowship Fund. The Simmons group is a member of the National Home Economics Society, and this year it is paying all the expenses of the Massachusetts student delegate to the National Home Economics Convention. She is a member of the Simmons Home Ec Club, Betty Christ.

Every month, the members of the club gather at a tea and you can be sure the food is good!

Anne Strong

Future Nightingales

Enthusiasm plus and a nearly one hundred per cent representation at all meetings is what keeps the club of Nursing School really strong, and this is quite in spite of the more than full program which any one who expects to receive a Simmons cap and cape undertakes.

Speakers prominent in the fields of nursing and medicine have come from China and India and hospitals nearer home to Evans Hall during the year. Programs ranged from demonstrations of nursing technique to demonstrations of mental alertness on the part of club members at discussion periods. The favorite topic for talk was the fields of nursing and their suitability to individual preferences.

Christmas season meant a party, but the toy presents went only temporarily to club members: they were rewrapped and sent to poor children. After Christmas came capping, the high spot of the year and the best of all possible send-offs for those budding nurses who were about to go into hospitals for training. In the Lounge, Nightingale candles were lighted, white-winged caps placed on the heads of the third-year nurses, and gold-lined capes on their shoulders, and they were ready to step forth as Simmons nurses.

English Club

This year the English Club, rather than limiting its members to the English School, opened its doors to everyone interested in writing or its professional allies and found that publishers aren't the only ones interested in publishing and lots of readers are interested in writing.

Here is just the place to meet people working right in the fields of editing, newspaper work, advertising, or illustrating — speakers who willingly drop their sophistication for informal chats over the teacups. Besides being grand fun, these chats may be of real assistance to girls looking forward to a writing or an editorial career.

Pedagogical priming

Smart girls keep in actual touch with developments in their fields of endeavor. The fact that well-educated girls are interested in things outside of their own special field is shown by the presence of students from other schools at meetings of the club.

As a club within a club, the Poetry Committee works with other collegiate groups to encourage the writing of poetry and creative criticism. The English Club can truly say that it leaves no field of English unexplored.

Scribunal Club

For relaxation from the grind of typewriters and the strain of accounting, Simmons secretaries get together once a month, mainly to cement friendships between the professors and students, in spite of the damning influence of shorthand and typewriting. The members show remarkable foresight in providing a particularly powerful helper — good food.

Through numerous speakers during the year, the practical as well as the social side gets a push. But the high light of the entire Scribunal year is the Banquet, held in the late Spring, the very last chance students have to impress their profs.

Scribbling scribes

Militant minorities

James Gavin of the Maritime Union, Ida Pruitt who has been doing work on the rebuilding of industry in China, and Sim Copans, who was in France at the outbreak of the war, discuss topics in which their experience gives them authority.

Great emphasis has been laid this year on the preservation of peace in the United States. A.S.U. is not affiliated with any political party, but supports legislation which is considered advantageous. A.S.U. cooperated with "Y" when the Thanksgiving Peace Service was presented, and in the Laboratory of Social Conditions.

The Simmons chapter of the American Student Union is part of the national organization and is also affiliated with the American Youth Congress.

Student Union

No academic mist for Simmons girls! In A.S.U. they have an organization which brings home to every student the significance of world events and especially their bearing upon youth in general.

Through the efforts of A.S.U., all Simmons has been able to hear such speakers as Carl Deutsch, Czechoslovakian refugee,

Y. W. C. A.

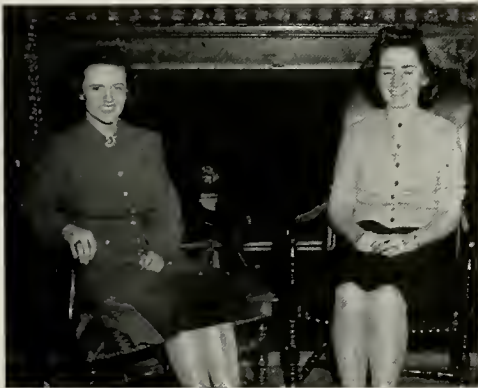

"Mind, body, and spirit"

Y.W.C.A. at Simmons stands for "Young Women Capable of Action." The variety of its activities extends from the first Freshman Party in the fall to the Student-Faculty Baseball game in the spring. One of the favorite haunts of "Y" members is Student Headquarters where Friday suppers and Student-Faculty suppers are held by the fireside with an informality which breaks down the reserve of the most solemn professor.

All is not fun and frivolity, however. There are teas and discussions arranged by the Commission on Religion and Interfaith, led by such speakers as Rabbi Schulman, Father Sheridan, and Dr. Kinsolving, with Menorah, Newman, and Unity as guests. This cooperative move extended to the offering of Mr. Rankin's course on Comparative Religious, the fulfillment of several years' hope and effort. The Commission on the World Christian Community held a German Appreciation Hour and a Japanese Tea and the Social Action Commission held a Laboratory of Social Conditions.

Food by the fireside

Newman Club

Spiritualizing the intellect

Simmons Newman Club, in an attempt to uphold the aim long ago set by Cardinal Newman, is a club of Catholic Culture and Catholic Fellowship. Its purposes are identical with its activities: namely, Religious, Educational, and Social — in that order of importance.

Upholding its motto, "Cor ad quo loquitor!", Simmons Newman Club takes an active part in the activities of the Federation of College Catholic Clubs, and represents the largest "per capita" membership in Boston. Memorable to the heart of every member are the talks of Father Renehan on world affairs, sprinkled with the humor that he alone can display, Father Rooney's more serious treatises,

Father Scannell's touching descriptions of life in the Brazilian missions, Father Sheridan's explanation of the Mass at the open meeting.

The Supper-Dance at Technology is the first social event on the calendars of these two clubs. Federation Week-end, with its formal, discussion group, tea dance, and Communion Breakfast was very worth while. Newman Formal was the best possible antidote for the pangs of mid-years. But the dearest, most unforgettable event of our season was the Mother-Daughter Communion Breakfast held on Mother's Day for members of the Simmons Newman Club and their mothers.

Menorah

Menorah began its year with an informal program designed to bring the girls together after a summer of separation and to welcome the incoming Freshmen. The high lights of a very busy season were an informal dance with Tech in November, the annual formal at Longwood Towers, a novel fashion show, and a bang-up ending with an all-day outing.

Menorah has its serious side too. Every member of the Simmons organization automatically becomes a member of the Intercollegiate Menorah Society, recently reorganized to effect coordination between the various Menorah Societies and to plan varied activities in which all the chapters participate. As members of this group, Menorah members have heard such interesting speakers as Dr. Liebman and Dr. Myerson in discussions of Jewish problems. At meetings of the Simmons chapter, climaxed inevitably by gatherings around the tea table, Mr. Tryon spoke on current events, Mr. Bush on the arts and Madame Morize arranged a stimulating musical program.

Dance publicity

Unity Club

An interest in intercollegiate activities, publicized by well-attended teas in the Lounge, informal Town and Gown dances at Brattle Hall in Cambridge, and round-table discussions on current topics, in conference with the various protestant churches of Boston, characterize the Simmons College Unity Club. The annual formal, held this year at the Parker House is also an anxiously awaited for night among club members.

Speakers at the teas have included Mrs. Waitstill Sharpe, who amazed us with her complete description of the Czechoslovakian seizure; President Beatley, who provoked much thought and raised much discussion when he asked "Has Religious Education Failed?"; Dr. Arthur Lee Kinsolving, who brought a bit of Christmas spirit to that season's meeting, held jointly with "Y"; and Miss Olga Lang, who gave first-hand information about Chinese co-operatives. They led discussions of religious unity.

Unity of spirit

Christian Science

Purely a religious group, the Christian Science Organization brings together all girls interested in bettering their understanding of Christian Science. Meetings are held every two weeks at which selections from the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook are read. The reader this year has been Ruth Garfink. Meetings of the club are open to all. Occasionally joint meetings with the Harvard, Radcliffe, or Boston University groups are planned.

A lecture is given annually by a member of the Board of Lectureship of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, the speaker this year being Judge Frederick Hill. To this lecture everyone interested in Christian Science is cordially invited.

The organization is eager to welcome any new members. By working together as a club, it aims to promote co-operation among the Christian Scientists of the college, and to increase a spirit of friendliness among all the members of the college.

It is only natural that there should be a very active group of Christian Scientists at Simmons, where the most notable landmark from the front windows is the dome of the Mother Church on Huntington Avenue. It is an effective reminder of the work begun by Mary Baker Eddy and carried on by her faithful followers in many groups similar to Simmons' own Christian Science Organization.

Christian Science monitors

Ivy-S

Ivy for friendship; S for Simmons, the newest of our student organizations, an outgrowth of the Refugee Committee, is mentioned everywhere. Organized under its new constitution as a permanent committee for the relief of oppressed students, both European and Asiatic, Ivy-S provides a means by which Simmons students may send help to students of other countries — scholarships and money.

Hard work by officers, committees, and subcommittees has made the name well known to all. Pledge cards and sealed contributions at a hall table every week have made it easy for any one who wishes to support the movement. As a result of good organization and effective publicity, Simmons has gone ahead of other colleges engaged in the undertaking, and has received honorable mention in the notices of International Student Service because of her co-operation.

With the advice of Dean Mesick and Miss Gilman, the help of Dr. Rankin and Mrs. Davis, and co-operation from Mr. Playfair and the editors of News, the initial year of Ivy-S finds it an important subject of student interest and conversation. Greater success next year is almost certain.

Athletics

Athletics go on at Simmons in spite of the decision of the Simmons athletic supporters to disband S.A.A. temporarily as a club. Under the Reorganization Committee, working with a handicap but with lots of enthusiasm, sports have gone ahead rapidly. The Committee's plan was to encourage girls to sign up for the sport they enjoyed most — with an eye to the formation of a new all-college club if enough interest was shown. Unfortunately not enough enthusiasm was aroused in the club as an entity to consider starting as an organization again this year. So sports have gone on as separate units under the Reorganization Committee. The reason for this lack of zeal in a central club seems to be the change in the trend of interest in sports in general, a decided swing away from team sports and toward individual activities.

A basketball season has been carried on under the able coaching of the Boston Bouvé practice teachers. Two active teams were organized and the girls played once a week. It was hoped that the introduction of an interscholastic program would spur on the interest in this sport, but this method was found not to be too successful. Instead, it was decided to invite several greater Boston women's colleges to participate in an individual sports Field Day at Simmons in the spring.

This season has seen a tremendous increase in the skating-bug. The tennis courts have been flooded and the excellent weather made possible increased skating on the Muddy River overflow, so that most any day you could look across the Fenway or out the back windows and see girls cavorting gaily on silver blades. Through the efforts of Miss Diall, the Arena gave lessons on Wednesdays and Fridays to a group of about sixteen girls.

Ping-pong paddling

We don't like to brag, but we're pleased to say that through this venture quite a compact little group of coming fancy-skaters has sprung up, and the future of this activity presents a brilliant outlook.

In addition to these sports, the Committee organized a ping-pong tournament in which all the classes participated, although the Juniors walked away with the honors, due to Sis Wilson's valiant efforts. Horseback riding and lifesaving have gone on smoothly as usual, and tennis practice shows more than good prospects for our proposed Field Day.

Athletic activities are not restricted to affairs arranged by the Athletic Committee, however. We participate in sports that have no connection with the college — except that they're held there — and even in those which have no connection with the college at all.

Boot removal

At the Brookline Avenue dormitories each year the "halls" play the "houses" in a tennis tournament and this year for the first time they competed at ping-pong. Interest in these sports is not limited to competitive playing, either. There is always a rush for Evans Hall basement and the ping-pong table after school and after dinner, and many girls take their dates there for a game in the evening.

In the fall until the snow flies and with the first sunny days of spring, the tennis courts at school and on campus are occupied continually. Girls who don't rate their tennis ability high enough to enter tournaments enjoy games just for fun. The campus badminton court has its occupants as well.

Swimming is always a popular sport, particularly with the Freshmen, who, as residents of Brookline, have free access to the Brookline Municipal Pool. Many of the other dorm students willingly part with quarters for the privilege of enjoying the pool. In the late spring there are those who travel to near-by beaches to brave the chilly waters of the ocean.

Skiing in the winter and sailing in the summer are other favorite sports. In good weather there's cycling for the fortunate few who own bikes. They are convinced that there is no better way of seeing the sights in the countryside near Boston and it's a grand way for car-less dorm students to go on picnics.

Some of the girls roller-skate for exercise but most of us content ourselves with long walks all over Boston. A few of us find time for golf but most of us are more familiar with teas than tees.

Athletically active

We Play and Live

We play and live — in an effort to put a little frosting on our curricular cake:

Dates and dinners, music and movies, parties and person-als, smokes and sings.

Topping the smooth spread of our own hobbies, pleasures and contacts are the festive decorations provided by our college life. Ribbons of laughter, garlands of gaiety, sprills of sentiment and letters of friendship combine into a colorful design of fun, liberally applied by Simmons. Our own crazy capacity for enjoyment forms the even background, a background made of everything from listening to Beethoven's Seventh, or sprawling on the grass, to pretending dignity in black robes.

Thus our own original interests are strongly blended with the sweets of social life which Simmons offers us.

LIFE IN '40

Life in '40, according to the census-taker, is a serious matter; life in '40, according to us, is a delightful conglomeration of exciting doings.

From fleet-footed hilarity at Freshman Formal to a post-graduation last fling at Senior Luncheon, we revel in relaxation. Our pleasures range from quiet conversation in lamp-lit rooms, over cokes at the drugstore, or in the smoking rooms while knitting needles fly, to nights of kaleidoscopic gaiety.

Fall to us means the Fenway carpeted with leaves, football games, horseback riding, the excitement of a new start among old friends. Winter means polished skis, silver blades and snow-ball fights. Spring means Step-singing, the sun-warmed comfort of hours on the Back Steps and the sound of voices from the tennis courts. '40 to us means memories of happiness.

INFORMAL SOCIETY

There just isn't any way to describe us. We don't stay put long enough to be classified. We manage in our peripatetic existence to drink enough tea to float the whole of England and enough coffee to balance the Brazilian budget. After 4:10 almost any day we dump our books and grab a teacup in the lounge, in the Evans Hall game-room, in front of the fireplace in South Hall, or in our own houses. We thrust steaming cups under the astonished noses of faculty guests and try to converse politely between mouthfuls of cookies. We expertly balance saucers at Alumnae and Open House teas and even at President's Reception.

Bicycles are repaired . . .

Fortunately, our tannin-quaffing capacities are not unlimited, so there's still time left for other things. The corner drug owes us a dividend by now and the Blue Ship and Durgin-Park pay us one in hours of enjoyment spent in conversation over red-checked tablecloths or watching the lights of fairy ships reflected in the harbor. Extensive exertion is all that keeps us from looking like Jack Sprat's wife. We climb all the gallery stairs in Boston to sit panting through happy hours at Pops, the opera, the ballet, all the new plays and most of the old ones, and lots and lots of movies.

We do get back to Simmons occasionally, when we're not off sailing on the Charles, watching football games, or pedalling over the countryside. We pull out the victrola records and give informal dances, sing together in the twilight at the Colonnade, lick our fingers and gasp at a real boar's head and flaming plum pudding at Old English Dinner, air our opinions at Town Meeting, fete the faculty at dinners and boo them at Student-Faculty Baseball Game, rise with the sun to eat strawberry shortcake at May Breakfast, and beam at our own prowess when offices and corsages are bestowed at May Party.

In the spring we board busses and head for Nantasket, there to gorge on hot dogs and soda pop, shiver in icy breakers, catch rings on the merry-go-round, and wield rifles with not-so-deadly aim. The Freshmen don bibs and turn autograph hounds with utmost abandon at Bib Party, watch with mock solemnity the service which unites Freshman bride and Junior groom, and howl with glee at the convulsive cavortings of Linwood Lil, et al, at Senior-Freshman Party. The Sophomores lunch in style and sport new rings, the Juniors lose their equilibrium at Dine 'n Roll and Senior Lambs sit down with faculty Lions at Senior-Faculty Supper.

FORMAL SOCIETY

Life is not all sweaters and skirts, school-books and teacups and trips into town. We're right in form when it comes to formals, too. We can look a receiving line in the eye, though we'd rather not, and we spend lots of hours feeling glamorous in long skirts. Mic Dance at the Statler Imperial is only the beginning. We dance on to sweet music in softly-lighted ball-rooms at Menorah and Newman-Unity and chuckle with our dates over News's newsy programs. The Freshmen float through Freshman Formal and decide that Simmons' form of formality is tops; the Sophomores sweep through Shuffle and agree.

The Juniors treasure memories of demure dresses, dancing, romancing and serenade at Prom, and the Seniors try to recapture the mood and nearly succeed at Senior Prom. Along comes another faculty dinner and out come our formals again to grace the long tables in the Refectory and gleam in candlelight. We don't do all the inviting to formal affairs, either. We air our best bibs and tuckers at all the nicest hotels and fraternity houses, not to mention Walker Memorial and certain other New England college halls we could name. We treasure faded flowers and old dance programs but we like new ones better.

DORMITORY LIFE

Dorms are made of bricks, boards, and bells — especially bells. There are bells to wake us in the morning in time to beat the eight o'clock signs on the Refectory doors, bells to get us to lunch on time, bells to keep us quiet, or to try to, and bells to tell us when to shout — as if we needed telling. Then there are those horrible, belligerent, jangling bells which call us from warm beds and send us scurrying to find coats and valuables and stumble downstairs to fire drills. There are buzzers and shrilling telephones which demand answers from belles of another ilk.

Arrival . . .

Returning the lob . . .

Removing the grease . . .

Upheaval . . .

Decoration . . .

Concentration . . .

Renewing the press . . .

Dorm life isn't all bells, though, far from it. There are long hours of freedom, crammed with activity, afternoon hours replete with strenuous activity on the tennis and badminton courts, at ping-pong in Evans, and holding snowball fights almost anywhere. There are winter afternoons of relaxation over books, not the school variety, hours of knitting everything from socks to afghans, of talking over everything from dates to the latest news from Europe, of writing letters, of smoking and singing and even just sitting. There are evenings which stretch far into the night and are never long enough.

Those long, dark nights of studying for exams and laboring over term papers are mercifully few, though never few enough to suit us. But there are always the hours we spend at our desks, twisted into strange positions, flanked by coke bottle and radio and faced with books, thinking of all the things we might be doing. Thoughts usually give way to actions, books are banished, and we end up playing bridge, cooking concoctions in the kitchenettes, listening to vics, flitting out to buy ice cream from the Good Humor man, taking perverse delight in playing tricks on each other, or talking far into the night.

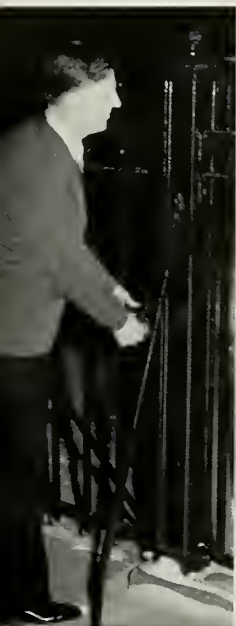

Listening . . .

Ringling . . .

Rendering . . .

Locking . . .

Trilling . . .

Triumphing . . .

Relaxing . . .

We'll always remember the scurrying and frantic borrowing of getting ready for dates and going down the stairs to meet the man, conscious of curler-bedecked heads lining the banisters above us. We'll never forget singing Christmas carols at Miss Christian's door at 3 A.M., being wakened by singing for May Breakfast, waiting for the mail to come in, telling Theresa our troubles, sprawling on the grass in the afternoon sun, rearranging our rooms periodically, helping Mike shovel walks and Jimmy plant pansies, rushing home from dates, packing bags for week ends, or any of the other things that make dorm life a delight.

GRADUATION

June brings to the Simmons campus green lawns and flowering shrubs, ivy-clad walls and bright flowers. Against this background moves the sometimes stately, sometimes sprightly pageant of Class Day and Graduation. Class Day brings a picture of bright sunlight on colorful dresses, our friends and families massed on the Colonnade. Across the campus come the notes of the "Marching Song" and the long line of Seniors, flanked by white-clad Juniors bearing ropes of daisies, winds past Brick House and North Hall to the steps of the Colonnade. The Seniors sing, the ivy is safely planted and they turn to luncheon on the lawn.

Walking . . .

Lunching . . .

Laughing . . .

Waiting . . .

Warbling . . .

Waving . . .

Leaving . . .

Evening finds them in frothy formals at their last class dance. It's almost over — only the tremulous seriousness of Baccalaureate and the foolish feeling of being introduced to our own professors at President's Reception, and then Graduation. The last day of all dawns on frantic packing, last-minute repairs to wrinkled gowns, the arrival of flowers. Then Symphony Hall at last, the faculty leads the Seniors down the aisle, Mr. Beatley begins: "By the authority vested in me . . .," and reads the long list of names. Graduation is over. All that's left is the shaky laughter of Senior Luncheon and the last good-byes.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The members of the Board of the 1940 MICROCOSM wish to acknowledge with gratitude the cooperation of editorial assistants Kay Herene, Rita Ricardo, Guen Simpson and Joyce McKee, photographic assistants Virginia Bresson and Norma Glike, Business Staff assistants Janet Wellman, Pat MacDonald, Helen Gilpin, Anne Grant and Marjorie French, and art assistants Irene Jelatis and Kitty Hubbard.

For their invaluable assistance, we wish to thank our Faculty Advisor, Mr. Dean Valz, and Barbara Elder of the Andover Press, Mr. Milton Fitch of Howard-Wesson Company, and Mr. William Adler of the Vantine Studio.

We are indebted for photographs to Mr. Playfair and the Publicity Office, the Bachrach Studio, Mr. William Noonan of the Boston Globe, Mr. Stearns, and Kathryn Wilson.

The understanding and timely help of many friends not officially connected with the MICROCOSM Staff elicit our sincerest thanks.

- * It is a matter of common knowledge that a reputation for fine quality . . .

SPEAKS FOR ITSELF

- * For that reason yearbook staffs at the leading educational institutions in the East engage the WARREN KAY VANTINE STUDIO for fine portraiture and a complete yearbook service.

- * It has been a pleasure to cooperate with Miss Barbara Pathé and her staff in portraying pictorially life at Simmons College as presented in this edition of Microcosm.
